Monthly comment

Global equity markets experienced their first monthly decline of the year due to increasing caution from investors amidst rising tensions in the Middle East and a hawkish interest rate outlook. While some inflation numbers were higher than expected, key economic data remained strong. Despite robust economic data, the Partners Group Listed Investments SICAV - Listed Infrastructure fund's value decreased during the month, mainly due to the performance of the US communication infrastructure sector, even though the portfolio companies reported Q1 results either in line with or better than expectations. Most sub-sectors within the portfolio saw declines, including railroads and airports, despite their Q1 results exceeding expectations. Chinese equities were the only region that contributed positively to the portfolio's performance.

ENN Energy, the Chinese gas utility, experienced an increase in value during the month due to speculation that the National Development and Reform Commission has urged local authorities and major gas distributors to eliminate household price caps by September. Currently, distributors have had to provide gas to households at fixed rates in each city while paying market prices for the fuel. However, the proposed new rules would permit utilities to pass on more of the cost to households, ultimately leading to increased margins and earnings.

US communication infrastructure REITs saw a decrease in their value during the month as US yields rose due to higher than anticipated inflation numbers. This decline occurred despite better-than-expected Q1 results from American Tower and Crown Castle, and in-line results from SBA Communications. American Tower also expects mid-to-high single-digit annualized growth in cash flows for the remainder of the decade, a guidance they have upheld for several years. Consequently, the three US towers are currently trading at an average of around 15 times Price/AFFO multiple, marking near all-time low multiples since converting to REITs.

Definitions

This monthly report is produced based on information available on the last working day of the month.

Infrastructure	The term 'infrastructure' comprises all durable capital goods which ensure the proper development of an economy. They comprise transportation infrastructure assets such as roads, airports, railways, harbours, tunnels and bridges. However, they also include assets of the communication infrastructure, such as TV and radio transmission systems, antennas and transmission towers for mobile phones, satellite systems and cable networks. Infrastructure also refers to utility assets in the fields of energy and water, such as energy facilities for power generation and distribution, of gas and oil exploration and distribution, as well as other water supply and distribution facilities, including desalination plants and sewage treatment facilities. Finally, infrastructure also includes the provision of services in the fields of education and health, as well as public sector building facilities (social infrastructure).
Listed infrastructure	A 'listed infrastructure' company is listed on a stock exchange and its purpose is investing in infrastructure assets.
Total return	Total return is calculated according the standard BVI-method of the Bundesverband Investment and Asset Management.
